The Diving

Whale Shark

Whale shark season revolves around the full moon. Most of the time, these giants are too deep in the water and divers can’t access them. However, during the full moon, whale sharks ascend to the water’s surface to feed on fish spawn and tiny plankton. Since their movements are tied to the moon cycle, divers can expect to encounter sharks starting 2 days before the full moon and staying for 10 after. The best months have traditionally April and May. Full Moon Dates in Belize: May 7th.
